A Message from the Jr. High

The Jr. High is busy with graduation efforts to celebrate our first graduating class. Our freshmen are working hard on their Capstone research projects that feature information about their upcoming Freshman Trip. Some of their topics include; 49 Gold Rush, Alcatraz, Japanese Gardens, and more.

The 7th & 8th graders should be watching for details about the upcoming camping overnight adventure on May 11th & 12th.

Our current and final cycle theme is interdependence. Here is a preview for next year's themes: Community, Structures, Patterns, and Balance

If any parent is interested in viewing an outline of the curriculum our Jr. High students are working on, the Jr. High Main Blog, or the Jr. High teacher blogs are a great resource. Information, pictures, and outlines are posted weekly to blogs to keep parents up-to-date on the current goings-on in the Jr. High community. Ongoing and completed projects are displayed in the Jr. High classrooms to showcase student work. For instance, did you know that the yurt has an art gallery? Ms. Andria, our ever-so-talented art teacher, currently has student work on display. Here is a picture of charcoal art the students have been working on this week:

What's New at MMA?

Literacy Week is coming up! The week will be chocked full of fun activities for students to do to celebrate the joy of reading. Among these activities is our Literacy Night for families. Please use this link to RSVP for Literacy Night: <http://goo.gl/forms/ui0qBikJPe>. See the below flyer for more details:
